

October 9, 2013

When our family doctor passed away unexpectedly at age 49 we were at a loss. Friends encouraged us see Dr. Lang. At a consult appointment we found him to be compassionate, caring and willing to listen.

We didn't quite understand the new medical concept he was starting in 2013, but we decided he was too valuable to not continue with him.

Within a month of enrolling in "Personalized Primary Care" Liz developed a serious medical condition which required emergency hospitalization. Dr. Lang was available 24/7 to coordinate her care with all the medical personal in the hospital, rehab and home healthcare. Dr. Lang contacted her almost daily to inform her of her progress. His private cell phone number was available to use late on a Saturday night for some troubling concerns. He made a visit to our house for a personal evaluation during her home bound period. He was with us every step of the way. Dr. Lang is the kind of doctor who says "I'm here for you" and means it.

Ask yourself these questions:

When was the last time,

1. You had a doctor's appointment and the doctor was waiting for you
2. Your doctor called you at home to see how you were doing
3. Your doctor made a house call
